

Interested in improving Health and Care for Women and their Babies?

Are you:

- A current patient?
- A previous patient?
- Someone interested in our services?

The Women and Children's Health Research team would love to hear from you!

Our Women and Children's Health Research team is constantly thinking of new ways they can improve the service and care of women and babies, here in Bristol and across the NHS.

The team is committed to making improvements in many areas, from the time you are thinking about having a baby, and may need additional support, through to the maternity services we provide; as well as looking into improving the care for bereaved families following a stillbirth.

But we can't do it alone...

Become a member of our Patient and Public Involvement group!

We have lots of exciting ideas, but we need your thoughts and opinions too. That way we can ensure that we are focusing our research on the areas that are important to you and will improve the healthcare services we deliver.

If you are interested in becoming a member of our group, or would just like to find out what it will involve, please contact us via the email address below.
