Want to know more about Patient and Public Involvement in research?

Patient and Public Involvement (PPI) is an essential requirement for the majority of research funding streams. If you're considering submitting a funding application it is important to consider PPI. Come and join us to discuss PPI and meet with research active Allied Health Professionals in the South West.

Two events will be held simultaneously at the University of the West of England and the University of Exeter with the aim of increasing awareness and promoting the benefits of using PPI. There will be a number of speakers who will be sharing their experience of conducting PPI in research.

Registration is free. To register, please see the links below.
